The story happened years ago, when my daughter was still little.

I was driving across the country with my daughter to __1__ my husband to spend the weekend in his city. Since I intended to get to my destination before supper time, I drove __2__ for a long time without a stop. Then after driving for many miles, I became tired and needed to stop for a break to get __3__.

I found a rest area. It was mostly deserted, in a quiet area of the highway. I parked the car and carried my __4__ into the restroom. When I came out I saw a middle-aged __5__ wandering around. Feeling __6__ about that, I asked the lady. What __7__ me was: they were waiting for us!

The lady told me that she and her husband wanted to see us safely back into our __8__. She explained that sometimes rest areas could be a __9__ place for a young lady like me. She told me that she had a daughter almost my age, so they wanted to make sure that I got safely back on my way.

I was very touched by their __10__. Being young, and probably naive(单纯的) to the potential(潜在的) __11__ of rest areas, it had never occurred to me that there was any possibility of something going wrong. I __12__ them for their kindness. My daughter and I continued our journey and __13__ our destination safely.

I never got their names but years have passed and their kindness is still not __14__. Sometimes angels come in make-up and just because you can't see their __15__ it doesn't mean they aren't angels.

II. 阅读理解（共 25 小题；每小题 2 分，满分 50 分）

阅读下列短文，从每题所给的 A、B、C 和 D 项中，选出最佳选项，并在答题卡上将该项涂黑。

A

Dear God,

Now that I am no longer young, I have friends whose mothers have passed away. I have heard these sons and daughters say they never fully appreciated their mothers until it was too late to tell them.

I am blessed with the dear mother who is still alive. I appreciate her more each day. My mother does not change, but I do. As I grow older and wiser, I realize what an extraordinary person she is. How sad that I am unable to speak these words in her presence, but they flow easily from my pen.

How does a daughter begin to thank her mother for life itself? For the love, patience and just plain hard work that go into raising a child? For running after a toddler, for understanding a moody teenager, for tolerating a college student who knows everything? For waiting for the day when a daughter realizes how wise her mother really is?

How does a grown woman thank a mother for continuing to be a mother? For being ready with advice (when asked) or remaining silent when it is most appreciated? For not saying, "I told you so", when she could have said these words dozens of times? For being essentially herself -- loving, thoughtful, patient, and forgiving?

I don't know how, dear God, except to bless her as richly as she deserves and to help me live up to the example she has set. I pray that I will look as good in the eyes of my children as my mother looks in mine.

A daughter

16. According to the passage, the writer's friends _____ before their mothers died.
    A. could tell them their appreciation
    B. never completely said "thank you" to their mothers
    C. lived to their mother
    D. were very thankful
17. What does the writer think of her mother?
    A. Changing.　　B. Happy.
    C. Loving, thoughtful, and forgiving.　　D. Outstanding.
18. Which of the following is NOT true according to the passage?
    A. She has said "thank you" to her mother dozens of times.
    B. The writer's mother is still alive.
    C. The writer has been a mother.
    D. She wishes God to bless her mother.

B

Having finished her homework, Ma Li wants some music for relaxation. As usual, she starts her computer and goes to Baidu.com to download music files. But this time she is surprised when an announcement about protecting songs' copyright bursts onto the screen. The age of free music and movie downloads may have come to an end as Web companies like Baidu are accused（控告）of pirating（盗用）copyright. Lawsuits（诉讼）have been filed against four websites offering free downloads. In September 2005, a Beijing court ordered Baidu to pay recording company Shanghai Push compensation for their losses. Baidu was also told to block the links to the pirated music on the website. This caused a heated discussion on Internet file sharing.

"Baidu's defeat in the lawsuit shows it is not right to get copyrighted songs without paying. Downloaders may face lawsuits or fines," said an official.

Like many teens, Huang Ruoru, an 18-year-old girl from Puning in Guangdong Province, doesn't think that getting music from websites is wrong. She always shares her favourite songs downloaded from Baidu with her friends. When told about the lawsuit, she began to feel a little guilty about getting others' work without paying.

However, other teenagers have different ideas. Wang Yafei, a Senior 2 girl from Jinan, Shandong Province pointed out that file sharing is a good way to promote pop singers. "If I download a song and really like it, I will buy the CD," she said. "So what the recording companies really should concentrate on is improving their music, rather than pursuing（追究）file-sharers."

21. Which of the following is the main idea of the passage?

A. Music on the Internet is of better quality.

B. Downloading material can be illegal.

C. It's good to get free music on the Internet.

D. Baidu is a popular web company.

22. The four web companies were put to court because _____.

A. they got copyrighted songs without paying

B. they downloaded copyrighted music for people

C. they make copyrighted files for free downloads

D. they offer free music on line

23. How do some of the teenagers feel while downloading free music after the lawsuit?

A. A bit guilty. B. A little sad. C. Extremely angry. D. Awfully sorry.

24. What's the advantage of file sharing for recording companies?

A. Getting more money from web companies.

B. Enabling people to download favorite songs.

C. Helping to improve the music.

D．Making pop singers more popular.

25. It can be inferred from the text that _____.

A．Web companies are still ignoring the copyright laws.

B．Teenagers haven't got money to buy CDs.

C．Teenagers are probably still downloading free music.

D．Teenagers prefer CDs with copyright to pirated music.

After commuting, cooking dinner and doing household chores, the average parent has just 30 minutes to devote to their children in the evenings, according to a new study. One in four working parents worry that half an hour simply isn't enough, while almost half fret（担心）that they aren't a good enough parent during the week.

However, parenting experts believe just 12 minutes a day may be enough for mothers and fathers to fully reconnect with their child — as long as they ask the right questions. Child psychologist Dr Claire Halsey said asking a series of open-ended questions can help improve parents' relationship with their children.

Among the questions recommended in the research are: "How many times have you smiled today — what made you laugh?"; "Can you act out what you did at breaktime?"; "Who is taller — mummy or your teacher?" and "What are the names of the toys you played with today?" Parents of older children are advised to start up a conversation with: "I've got a great story for you but I want one in return… you first!" or "Tell me some school gossip … I'm all ears!"

Dr Halsey, working with the makers of Ribena Plus, who commissioned（委任）the research, said: "There is no one as tough on their own parenting skills as a parent — but this study shows there is no need for parents to be so harsh. It's hard for working parents to juggle（尽量兼顾） all their responsibilities and it can feel like guilt is simply a parent's lot — but it's absolutely not. By using clever tactics（策略）such as a little preparation alongside use of open-ended questions — such as 'Tell me what the best bit about your day was?' — parents can reduce the time worrying about chores and work and spend more time learning about their children's day."

26. The underlined word reconnect in Paragraph 2 is closest in meaning to _____.

A．discuss　　B．communicate　　C．understand　　D．combine

27. According to Paragraph 1, almost half of the working parents _____.

A．can spare only about half an hour to be with their kids every day

B．spend their daytime commuting, cooking dinner and doing household chores

C．worry that half an hour's stay with their kids is far from enough

D．fear that they aren't a good enough parent during the week

28. What does the underlined sentence in Paragraph 3 mean?

A．I will be glad to listen.

B．I will be very interested.

C．I will listen carefully.

D．I will call your teacher at school.

29. Which of the following open-ended questions is for a three-year-old child?

A．Where are you off to with your friends this weekend?

B．Who played the best in your football match today?

C．What science project are you doing at the moment and can I help with it?

D．What are the names of the toys you played with today?

30. What does Dr Halsey intend to tell us in this passage?

A．It is not necessary for parents to spend too much time with their children.

更多资料尽在深圳智康 qq 交流群：90482695　　官网：sz.jiajiaoban.com

B. It is natural that working parents do not afford more time to reconnect with kids.

C. It is important that working parents learn more parenting skills.

D. It is clever that parents ask their kids questions instead of doing chores.

D

Some people believe that international sport creates goodwill between the nations and that if countries play games together, they will learn to live together. Others say that the opposite is true: international competitions encourage false national pride and lead to misunderstanding and hatred. There is probably some truth in both arguments, but in recent years the Olympic Games have done little to support the view that sport encourages international brotherhood. Not only was there the tragic incident including the murder of athletes, but the Games were also ruined by incidents caused mainly by smaller national contests.

One country received its second-place medals with visible anger after the hockey final. There had been noisy scenes at the end of the hockey match, the losers objecting to the final decisions. They were sure that one of their goals should not have been disallowed and that their opponents' victory was unfair. Their manager was in great anger when he said, "This wasn't hockey. Hockey and the International Hockey Federation are finished." The president of the Federation said later that such behavior could result in the suspension（停赛）of the team for at least three years.

Incidents of this kind will continue as long as sport is played competitively rather than for the love of the game. The suggestion that athletes should compete as individuals, or in non-national teams, might be too much to hope for. But in the present organization of the Olympics there is far too much that encourages aggressive patriotism（爱国主义）.

31. According to the author, recently the Olympic Games have _____.

A. created goodwill between the nations

B. brought about only false national pride

C. hardly showed any international friendship

D. put an end to misunderstanding and hatred

32. The underlined word "disallowed" (in Paragraph 2) means "_____".

A. permitted to pass　　B. considered as reasonable

C. won by the other side　　D. refused to accept

33. What did the manager mean by saying, "Hockey and the International Hockey Federation are finished"?

A. His team would no longer take part in international games.

B. Hockey and the Federation are both ruined by the unfair decisions.

C. There should be no more Hockey matches organized by the Federation.

D. The Federation should break up.

34. The author gives the example in paragraph 2 to show _____.

A. how false national pride led to undesirable incidents in international games

B. that sportsmen are often against the final decisions

C. that competitiveness in the games discourages international friendship

D. that unfair decisions are common in the Olympic Games

35. What conclusion can be drawn from the passage?

A. The organization of the Olympic Games must be improved.

B. Athletes should compete as individuals in the Olympic Games.

C. A game should be played competitively rather than for the love of the game.

D. More and more athletes will compete for their own honor.

Since the 1970s, scientists have been searching for ways to link the brain with computers. Brain-computer interface (BCI) technology could help people with disabilities send commands to machines.

Recently, two researchers, Jose Millan and Michele Tavella from the Federal Polytechnic School in Lausanne, Switzerland, demonstrated（展示）a small robotic wheelchair directed by a person's thoughts.

In the laboratory, Tavella operated the wheelchair just by thinking about moving his left or right hand. He could even talk as he watched the vehicle and guided it with his thoughts.

"Our brain has billions of nerve cells. These send signals through the spinal cord (脊髓) to the muscles to give us the ability to move. But spinal cord injuries or other conditions can prevent these weak electrical signals from reaching the muscles." Tavella says. "Our system allows disabled people to communicate with external world and also to control devices."

The researchers designed a special cap for the user. This head cover picks up the signals from the scalp（头皮）and sends them to a computer. The computer interprets the signals and commands the motorized wheelchair. The wheelchair also has two cameras that identify objects in its path. They help the computer react to commands from the brain.

Prof. Millan, the team leader, says scientists keep improving the computer software that interprets brain signals and turns them into simple commands. "The practical possibilities that BCI technology offers to disabled people can be grouped in two categories: communication, and controlling devices. One example is this wheelchair."

He says his team has set two goals. One is testing with real patients, so as to prove that this is a technology they can benefit from. And the other is to guarantee that they can use the technology over long periods of time.

36. BCI is a technology that can _____.

A. help to update computer systems　　B. link the human brain with computers

C. help the disabled to recover　　D. control a person's thoughts

37. How did Tavella operate the wheelchair in the laboratory?

A. By controlling his muscles.　　B. By talking to the machine.

C. By moving his hand.　　D. By using his mind.

38. Which of the following shows the path of the signals described in Paragraph 5?

A. scalp → computer → cap →wheelchair

B. compute → cap → scalp →wheelchair

C. scalp → cap → computer →wheelchair

D. cap → computer → scalp →wheelchair

39. The team will test with real patients to _____.

A. make profits from them　　B. prove the technology useful to them

C. make them live longer　　D. learn about their physical condition

40. Which of the following would be the best title for the text?

A. Switzerland, the BCI Research Center

B. New Findings About How the Human Brain Works

C. BCI Could Mean More Freedom for the Disabled

D. Robotic Vehicles Could Help to Cure Brain Injuries
