D. Answer the questions (根据短文内容回答问题) (12 分)

The art of acting in a theatre and writing plays for the theatre is known as drama (戏剧) . Most dramatic events take the form of actors acting out a story by a writer. called a playwright or dramatist.

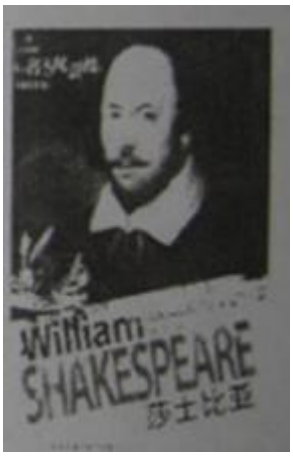

Because this is usually done on a stage in a theatre. drama is also called theatre. The stories acted in the theatre are called plays. Drama is very much like literature(文学) , but is not written only to be read from books. In a way it is a kind of literature brought to life in the form of a play.

Some drama is not written down. but is made up by the actors as they go along. This is called improvisation(即兴创作). Another form of drama is mime. In mime， the actors do not say anything, but use their movements and facial expressions to tell the story. In mime make-up and costume is important to show the kind of character that the actor is playing.

The first recorded play was performed by the ancient Egyptians around 2700 BC. The beginning of drama as we know it. however. was in ancient Greece, where it used to be part of a religious ceremony(宗教仪式). The Greek plays were performed in semi-circular theatres. These outdoor theatres could often hold over 20,000 people. The church in the Middle Ages also used drama as part of its worship. As time went by. groups of actors were from town to town with a mobile stage to put these plays on.

Soon,actors and playwrights found new subjects for their plays. Towards the end of the 15th century,the Italians developed the art of comedy .

A hundred years later. in England. William Shakespeare (1564-1616) was writing many plays on historical subjects. Nowadays, plays have as many different subjects as novels do and there are dramatists in many countries writing all kinds of plays.

88. What do actors do in most dramatic events?

89. Why is drama very much like literature?

Because it's not only_____, but also_____

90. How do the actors tell the story in mime?

91 . Where did drama begin as part of a religious ceremony?
